LIFE PRISONER STABS TWO

Deputy Warden Frank R. Balloy was seriously wounded, and Dr. Ralph E. Gallinger, prison physician, and son of Senator Gallinger, was cut in the wrist by a prisoner known as John Doe, serving a life sentence for murder, in Concord state prison this afternoon.

Doe stole upon the men from behind and wielded a knife with deadly effect. It is believed here that Doe was the man who was connected with the Rockingham Junction hold-up three years ago, when he killed an Italian on the early morning train from Portland, after being placed under arrest for the robbery of the Luddy-Currier shoe company's office in Dover.

PORTSMOUTH ONLY YARD FILLING PRESENT NEEDS

Conditions in Which No Other Yard Could Handle Big Ships

Not only that the coming ships of the navy will be unable to dock at any navy yard on the Atlantic coast except Portsmouth, but that under certain conditions no other navy yard could accommodate the largest ships now in commission, is proved in a communication forwarded today to Secretary Meyer by Piscataqua Harbor, No. 83, Masters, Mates and Pilots Association.

The purpose of the statement is to "drive home" the good opinion of this yard which Secretary Meyer is now believed to entertain, and the proof of the startling statements made therein should go far toward convincing him and all its readers that the Portsmouth yard alone is one which can be singled out for development to the utmost needs of the navy.

Following is the letter sent to Secretary Meyer:

Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 11, 1910.
Hon. George von L. Meyer, Secretary of the Navy.

Sir:—We, members of Piscataqua Harbor, No. 83, Masters, Mates and Pilots Association, wish to call to your attention facts which we consider an indisputable argument for its indispensableness.

1. Should ships of the Florida-Utah type, or larger ones already planned, become crippled by stranding, collision or an enemy's shot to such an extent that several compartments filled with water, their normal draught of 30 feet or more would be so increased that they could reach no navy yard on the Atlantic Coast except Portsmouth.

2. Depth of water off Portsmouth navy yard wharves and undeveloped water front ranges from 50 to 60 feet, while the maximum at any other Atlantic coast yard is 35 feet.

3. No yard except Portsmouth has sufficient water to sink a floating sectional dock, which would be the only means of raising and repairing a disabled, waterlogged battleship.

4. Portsmouth navy yard has absolute freedom from ice, available location for several dry docks of unlimited size, and rock foundations for all building operations, in all of which respects it is unique among navy yards on the Atlantic coast.

5. That objections to the tide at this yard are groundless since the removal of Henderson's Point is proved by the fact that within a few days the Tennessee and Montana have safely been taken from the navy yard to sea, and the North Carolina docked, each on the strength of the tide. Each of these ships is 502 feet long, while the largest ships in the navy are 510.

We respectfully urge your consideration of the facts above stated, and investigation of the veracity of our statements.

Very truly yours,
PISCATAQUA HARBOR NO. 83.
Thomas B. Hoyt, President.

SUPERIOR COURT

The case of J. Fred Dorr of Kittery Point, administrator of Nelson Dorr, against the Atlantic Shore Line railway, came up for trial this morning in superior court. The boy was found lying terribly mangled in the road on the forenoon of Jan. 26, 1909, and died soon after.

Nelson was supposed to have slid down Keen's avenue on his sled and directly under the wheels of the car, which was passing the head of the avenue. There were no eyewitnesses of the accident.

Kelley, Harding and Hatch are counsel for Mr. Dorr, and Kivel and Hughes of Dover and Aaron B. Colo

CHALK RING CHAIRS

Maybe this is a fable, but you'll agree it might be true.

A traveling salesman told us once that he knew a merchant who had a big chalk ring in the rear of his store. Whenever a salesman came in to sell him chairs he took him back to this ring, seized his photographs and threw them high in the air over the chalk ring. He bought the chairs whose photographs fell in the ring.

Some men use the same plan without even providing a ring—but it's hard on the customers. On our chair floor there are nearly two hundred different chairs. We compared perhaps ten thousand different designs before the selection was made. That's why our chair floor is interesting. The designs are right—and the prices too.

THEATRICAL TOPICS

Graustark
A Princess of the royal blood and an American of characteristic push and energy are the prominent characters in "Graustark," Geo. D. Baker's dramatization of George Barr McCutcheon's popular romantic novel which will be the attraction here shortly. Placed in a setting of regal splendor, these two with their retinue of friends and enemies provide the play with living human beings.

Lillian Russell
Lillian Russell, who is en route to the Pacific coast under the direction of Joseph Brooks, in a new play entitled "In Search of a Sister," by Charlotte Thompson, has this to say on these two subjects so close to the heart of woman—dress and man.

"To keep a man, don't let on you are trying, but keep on the job every minute, and it is too easy. Just be a kitten and the boy that the man expects you to be, but be an interesting kitten and a clever toy, because there's a lot of competition in this game."

"There is no such thing as style. A well dressed woman wears what becomes her, regardless of the passing vogue. Every woman should set her own styles. Women spend too much on dress. A few gowns are worth a trunkful of shoddy freaks. American women want too many costumes. Women love to dress because they love to control and boss men. A woman is a chump if she doesn't dress the best she can without being extravagant."

"I'm Pinin' for You"
Williams and Van Alstyne always have a lot of hits on the market, and this year in addition to the big success of the songs in "Gillespie," Fred Thompson's great musical production, they have launched "I'm Pinin' for You" under the Remick banner and its a corker. Many Williams is a prolific writer and when in the mood can turn out hits as fast as Van Alstyne can write the music, which is a fact. However his work is always revised later, and while he may not get a hit in an hour he will spend days in revising and improving it until it is perfect in his opinion. Then it goes to Van Alstyne who is able to write melody just fast as it can be placed on paper. Van Alstyne will write five or six melodies to the song. And then both he and Williams select one that they think will suit the lyric best. Van Alstyne claims that he could only write one melody for "I'm Pinin' for You" and that when Williams heard it he exclaimed, "Van, that's an inspiration and it's the melody that came in my ears when I wrote the words. It will be a hit." It has proved to be one of the many and from present outlook the biggest they ever wrote.

The Balkan Princess
"The Balkan Princess," which William A. Brady (Lad.) will shortly produce, is a spectacular musical play, which, in London, has duplicated the enormous success of "The Merry Widow." Like the latter, "The Balkan Princess" is brimming over with romance, sentiment and melody. The central figure is the Princess Stephanie, who must either marry one of the six highest born noblemen in her realm, or a royal prince of another country, or lose her throne. Of course, as in all true romances, the Princess falls in love with the bitterest enemy of her house, which, in this instance, happens to be the Grand Duke Sergius. Rather than marry a man she does not love, the Princess is about to abdicate, but the Duke stops her.

"A woman who is strong enough to do what you have done tonight," he says, "is strong enough to rule the people."

"Then," says the Princess, "let us rule together."

What man could resist a proposal so adroitly put? Sergius consents, and the story ends with the melody of a haunting love song.

A magnificent scenic production is being prepared for "The Balkan Princess." The costumes are also described as magnificent.

Hard on the Eyesight.
Looking into the fire, particularly a coal fire, is very injurious to the eyes. The stimulus of fire and heat united soon destroys the eyes. Looking at molten iron will soon destroy the sight. Reading in the twilight is injurious to the eyes, as they are obliged to make great exertion. Reading or sewing with a shaft light injures the eyes, as both eyes should be exposed to an equal degree of light. The reason is the sympathy between the eyes is so great that if the pupil of one eye is dilated by being kept partially in the shade the eye that is exposed cannot contract itself sufficiently for protection and will ultimately be injured—Boston Herald Review.

MAJORITY VOTE FOR CONVENTION

Vote by Counties for or Against Revision

The constitution of the state of New Hampshire, after providing that one in seven years the sense of the people shall be taken as to the necessity for a revision of the constitution and for the return of the votes thereon to the general court, says: "If it shall appear to the general court by such return that the sense of the people of the state has been taken, and that, in the opinion of a majority of the qualified voters in the state present and voting at said meetings, there is a necessity for the revision of the constitution, it shall be the duty of the general court to call a convention for that purpose."

The sense of the people was thus taken on Tuesday, and by a very large majority they have voted for a convention. With thirty small towns missing, but with more than nine-tenths of the total vote tabulated, the returns show these results: Yes, 50,922; no, 33,983.

The vote by counties was as follows:

COMPANIES TO ARBITRATE

Willing to Take All Old Employees
Back Except Those Who Have Committed or Incited Acts of Violence Against Them—Agreement Drawn Up at Instance of Gaynor—Terms Same as Employees Agreed To

New York, Nov. 11.—The most unruly day of the drivers and helpers strike against the five transcontinental express companies ended with what seemed a trustworthy promise of peace.

A committee representing the employees—not the union, which has organized and conducted the strike—and the executive officers of the five companies, met in Mayor Gaynor's office last evening and signed an agreement for presentation at a mass meeting for ratification. With the agreement accepted by the men, the strike will end today.

The agreement, in the form of a letter to Henry R. Towne, president of the Merchants' association of New York, follows:

"We are willing to take back our employees who are on strike, whether or not they have joined a union, reserving the right, however, to decline to take back any of them, whether they be members of a union or not, who may have committed or incited acts of violence and hostility against us."

"Those of our companies whose employees have raised a question concerning their hours of employment or rate of wages will agree, after the men resume work, at once to take up these questions with their employees, or with committees of them, for the purpose of reaching a settlement which shall be just and satisfactory to both parties, with the understanding that the former hours and rates of wages shall continue in effect until Dec. 1 next, and that on that date any changes mutually agreed upon shall then become effective."

Before the agreement was signed the day had been turbulent, confused and full of statements and counter-statements. There was more rioting than at any time during the strike.

It was directly due to Mayor Gaynor that the agreement was drawn up and signed. Wednesday night the companies issued and yesterday printed in the advertising columns of the newspapers a long statement defining their position.

"When I came to the office," said Gaynor last night, "and was shown the published statement of the express companies, I saw that it belied down it meant the same as the terms the men agreed to last week on my request. I sent for Mr. Towne and asked him to reduce it to such a short form and see if the express companies would not sign it. He did so and they all signed."

AN ALLEGED POISONER

Wife of Millionaire Pork Packer Is Held Without Bail

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 11.—Mrs. Laura Farnsworth Schenck, wife of John O. Schenck, a millionaire pork packer of this city, was arrested and locked up on a warrant issued by the prosecuting attorney charging attempted murder of her husband by administering poison in his food.

Schenck was taken to the North Wheeling hospital two weeks ago and since that time repeated attempts of Mrs. Schenck to have him taken back to their palatial home in Wheeling have been contested by Mr. Schenck's relatives.

Schenck is in a critical condition. Mrs. Schenck is in jail and is not admitted to bail.

Fears That She May Have Been Lost With Two Hundred Men

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 11.—Great anxiety is felt here for the safety of the steamer Wolverine, having on board 200 fishermen returning from northern fishing stations on Lake Winnipeg.

The steamer is supposed to have been caught in the lee which formed earlier than usual this year and prevented the steamers from entering the harbors.

The Wolverine has not been heard from in ten days.

was welcome. In other wards men under indictment for crime assisted in the election of the Republican candidate and money and liquor was handed out from a back window by the bosses. In the leading ward of the city people who wanted to sell their votes were led like cattle to the booths by the party of Boss.

Judge Page asks Bass to meet him privately and he promises to give him information that will convince him that his election, as far as Portsmouth is concerned, is tainted with crime.

BEVERIDGE IS REJECTED

Democrats Control Indiana For First Time In Thirteen Years

Indianapolis, Nov. 11.—Senator Beveridge will not be re-elected. Late returns show that the Democrats have elected a majority of the members of the Indiana assembly, which will choose his successor. Democrats will have a majority of thirty-two on a joint ballot. John W. Kern was endorsed last spring by the Democrats for senator. The Democratic state ticket has a plurality of about 15,000. Of the thirteen Indiana congressmen twelve will be Democrats. Crumpacker of the Ninth district was the only Republican elected.

For the first time in thirteen years, the Democrats control every branch of the state government, both United States senatorships and all but one congressional district. Governor Marshall's term has two years to run.

COLORADO IS DEMOCRATIC

Four Women Are Elected Members of the General Assembly

Denver, Nov. 11.—Returns are still incomplete, owing to the enormous number of scratched ballots, but figures so far compiled point to the election of practically the entire Democratic state ticket and the three Democratic candidates for re-election to congress. The election of Governor Shafroth, Democrat, is conceded by the Republicans.

Four women will sit in the Eighteenth general assembly of Colorado as a result of the election. They are Alma Lafferty, Louise U. Jones and Louise M. Kerwin, all elected to the house of representatives from Denver districts on the Democratic ticket, and Agnes Riddle, Republican, elected from three outside counties.

In the last general assembly Mrs. Lafferty, who was re-elected, was the only woman representative. There are no women senators.

HARMON'S PLURALITY GROWS

Official Count Expected to Swell It to More Than 100,000

Cleveland, Nov. 11.—Governor Harmon, Democrat, rolled up a plurality of 55,000 over Warren G. Harding, Republican candidate, according to figures compiled by The Plain Dealer. That when the official count is completed Harmon will have over 100,000 plurality is probable. The success of the remainder of the Democratic state ticket is no longer in doubt.

The campaign for the seat in the United States senate, now held by Charles Dick, has been taken up by the Democrats.

Warren G. Harding, defeated Republican candidate for governor, who for twelve years has been active in state politics, has announced to friends his complete retirement from politics.

CHAMP CLARK'S MULE TEAM

Missourian Intends to Drive It Down Pennsylvania Avenue

Washington, Nov. 11.—Already Washington is making preparations for the triumphant entry of Champ Clark into the national capital next year, when he comes to preside over the house as the first Democratic speaker since Crisp.

The Missourian promised before the election that if the house went Democratic he would drive down Pennsylvania avenue to the Capitol to be sworn in behind a span of Missouri mules. A Republican constituent told him he would make him a present of the mules if he would drive them and Champ accepted.

Burke Leads in North Dakota
Fargo, N. D., Nov. 11.—Returns from every county in the state, some of them incomplete, show that Governor Burke, Democrat, has a lead of 16,271 votes over Johnson. The incomplete returns are from counties which are admittedly Johnson counties.

Both Parties Claim Oklahoma

Guthrie, Okla., Nov. 11.—Both political parties still claim the state as a result of Tuesday's election. Returns received, however, indicate that Lee Cruise, a Democrat, was elected governor.

Des Moines, Nov. 11.—Complete returns from ninety-three counties in Iowa give R. F. Carroll, Republican, for governor, a lead over Claude R. Porter, Democrat, of 10,424.

GREAT DETECTIVE SHIFT

Kentucky Murderer Says He Will Not Be Placed by New Blood

New York, Nov. 11.—The biggest shakeup in the detective bureau since Theodore Roosevelt was commissioner is expected to take place when one-half of the force will be removed and replaced by the new blood.

Second Deputy Police Commissioner Flynn, recently in charge of the federal secret service here, has been quietly examining 250 young patrolmen, with the view of making detectives of them. To these men the deputy commissioner is said to have held out the lure of increased salary as an incentive.

The idea of Flynn, who is the new head of the central office, is to put the detective bureau on the same basis as Scotland Yard, where the uniformed men are separate and distinct from the plain clothes police.

RULES STRETCHED

FOR NOBLE SMOKER

Cigaret Enjoyed by Lady Johnson in Ocean Liner's Saloon

New York, Nov. 11.—Lady Allen Johnson, wife of the British minister at Copenhagen, arrived on the White Star liner Adriatic for a short stay in this country. Lady Johnson caused a mild sensation in the saloon after luncheon, which was served while the ship was coming up the bay, by producing a silver filigree cigarette case, selecting a cigarette and sending a steward for a match.

"Isn't it against the rules for smoking to be allowed in the saloon?" asked one of Lady Johnson's fellow passengers, as she blew a cloud of blue smoke ceilingward.

"Well," said the chief steward, in a conciliatory manner, "you see, we're so nearly in port now that a rule more or less doesn't matter." So Lady Johnson finished her smoke in peace.

Kentucky Murderer Says He Will Not Be Captured Alive

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 11.—Aided by heavily armed relatives, Jake Noble, who killed Wesley Turner, jailer of Breathitt county, is entrenched on Lost creek, far back in the mountains, according to advices received here from Jackson.

Noble has defied the authorities to arrest him and fully 200 men either in official posess or in private hunting parties, organized under the lure of a $500 reward for Noble's capture, have started for the mountains.

Pullman Company to Revise Rates

Washington, Nov. 11.—The Pullman company has notified the Interstate commerce commission that it is prepared to submit a sweeping revision of sleeping-car rates calculated on the basis of the decision in the Lotus case. This was the case wherein the commission said that if the charge for a lower berth was $2 only $1.50 should be charged for an upper.

WALKER'S ANNOUNCEMENT

It Breaks Long Standing Succession Rule by Which Lieutenant Governor Is Made Chief Executive of State—Strong Opposition to Return of Lodge Develops Because Possibility of Defeat Is Shown

Boston, Nov. 11.—Speaker Walker's announcement that he will be a candidate for governor of the commonwealth next fall has been the leading topic of discussion among politicians.

The election of a Democratic governor has made easily possible the breaking of the succession rule by which the lieutenant governor is chosen governor. For some time past there has been talk of breaking the succession, and while many members of the party regretted that it must come with Lieutenant Governor Frothingham as the victim, yet the demand within the party for an open field and a chance for everybody to run for governor has been growing.

It has been well understood that Walker was a tentative candidate, and many of his friends have urged him to declare himself. Since the election of Foss as governor they have been more insistent than ever, and as a result he made his announcement.

This announcement opens the way to the whole field of Republican aspirants for the governorship. Congressman Weeks has had aspirations, and Robert Luce is another who has been urged to try for the head of the ticket. When Frothingham was first nominated, it was after a warm preliminary contest with Luce and John N. Cole. Cole was then speaker, and proposed to become lieutenant governor and then governor, as did Luce, but the party leaders at that time severely intrenched in power, would have none of it, and both withdrew. Now both have a chance.

Some friends of Frothingham criticized Walker for "jumping into the race." In reply to them Walker's friends stated that while they knew he had the highest admiration for the lieutenant governor and felt that if he could be nominated and elected he would vote for him, he felt sure that in any event somebody else would come in as a candidate for governor. In such a case Walker, if he announced his candidacy, would be a candidate against two instead of one. They felt that Walker's ambition to be governor was honorable and justifiable and that if others wish to try a contest they would stand on the same basis.

A canvass of the members of the new Massachusetts legislature made by the Boston Globe, the Boston Journal, Republican, and the Boston American indicates the defeat of Senator Lodge for the United States senate.

The senator is working hard in an attempt to count the unbroken wheels in his heretofore seemingly perfect state machine. He finds that of 128 Republican representatives-elect, 10 are openly against him; 44 are for him and 74 either refuse to discuss their preference or cannot be found.

Of the 25 Republican senators-elect, 19 have been heard from. Only seven are frankly for Lodge, two are for Butler Ames and 10 are keeping silent as to their future action.

To gain re-election Lodge needs 141 votes in the legislature. Only 51 senators and representatives who have been interviewed are frankly for him. This agrees with Butler Ames' claim that only 60 are pledged to Lodge.

The great fight is already on and the political atmosphere is alive with rumors.

Senator Lodge started to fight in real earnest yesterday. By nightfall his efforts had borne startling fruit. One by one men picked as his opponents among Republicans withdrew and announced they were in favor of Lodge's re-election.

Ex-Governors Guild and Bates, Governor Draper and Speaker Walker are now eliminated. Guild, who was looked upon as the strongest man in the state to win over Lodge, formally withdrew last night.

This leaves Congressman Ames Lodge's sole opponent among the Republicans. The Lodge men will demand a caucus, and thus by a process of elimination of other candidates plus a caucus, Lodge expects to win.

Judge Page Charges Bribery at Polls in New Hampshire

Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 11.—Judge Calvin Page, ex-mayor and ex-senator, caused a sensation in political circles throughout the state by an open letter to Governor-elect Bass in which he states that he will furnish proof of bribery and open buying of voters in the interest of Republican candidates on the state ticket on election day.

Father and Son Drowned When Leaky Boat Goes to Bottom

Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 11.—Joseph St. Germain, 59 years of age, and his son, Peter St. Germain, 22, both piano makers of Fall River, were drowned, and Arthur Duhamel, 35, a blacksmith of that city, barely managed to save himself last night when the boat in which they were fishing sank a quarter of a mile from shore in the Seaboard river.

The men had been fishing all afternoon. Shortly after nightfall it was noticed that the boat, which had been leaking, was filling faster than before. Soon the water, which entered from several places, began to fill the bottom of the boat.

The elder St. Germain manned the single pair of oars which the party had carried, and while his two companions bailed madly, he exerted himself to the utmost to reach the shore. Working in a foot of water, the two men bailing soon realized that the invading waters were beyond them and shortly after the boat settled and all were thrown into the water.

Neither of the St. Germain men could swim, and, according to Duhamel, sank almost immediately.

REPORT ON MEXICAN RIOT

Our Ambassador Says American Flag Was Desecrated

Washington, Nov. 11.—Official dispatches giving details of the anti-American demonstration in Mexico City have reached the state department from United States Ambassador Wilson and Arnold Franklin, the American consul-general.

Mr. Wilson confirmed the press reports that he had protested to the Mexican department of foreign relations against the insults offered Americans and that the riot grew out of the lynching of a Mexican, Antonio Rodriguez, at Rock Springs, Tex.

Mr. Franklin's dispatch said that the riotous students who paraded the streets, cried "Death to Americans," and threatened the consulate. He also told how these students had pulled an American flag from a business house and had trampled it under foot.

The department is awaiting further advices from Wilson before taking any action in the matter.

BAY STATE FARMER HAS WORLD'S RECORD

Raises Over Three Hundred Bushels of Corn on Acre

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 11.—Perley G. Davis of Granby, a town in central Massachusetts, was given the distinction by the New England Corn Exposition judges here of establishing a new world's record for corn production. In addition Davis was also awarded a prize of $500.

The new record was made on one acre of land, from which Davis harvested 103 1/2 bushels of cob-dry, yellow flint corn. His yield at harvest time was 127 bushels of shelled corn, which was reduced to equal 103 1/2 bushels on a scientific basis.

Fifty-nine farmers entered the corn-growing contest, and twenty-seven of them remained in it to the finish. Each acre was measured by disinterested persons, and the crop was harvested, weighed and measured in the presence of three witnesses.

TONIC MISBRANDED

Was to Be Rubbed in "Roots" to Grow Hair on Bald Heads

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Mrs. Gertrude Graham was fined $50 and costs by Judge Landis in the United States district court on a plea of having misbranded her tonic. The label read "Guaranteed to Grow Hair on Bald Heads," and then, under instructions, it directed "Rub in the roots of the hair."

Judge Landis asked for an explanation of "roots of hair on a bald head," but none was forthcoming. The prosecutor told the court that an analysis of the product showed that it did not, and perhaps could not, contain the necessary elements to bear out the statement on the label.

TRUE AND TRIED REPRESENTATION

No state in the Union of the size of New Hampshire, and few of many times its area, have a louder voice, as it were, in national legislative affairs than this little Granite State.

Now it bids fair to be more prominent than before in such matters. Senator Gallinger will loom up more conspicuously than ever among the newly elected members.

With his prestige, power and experience, his place on the senate naval committee, always influential, will become more so. His word with the comparatively inexperienced newcomers will have great weight, as it has done.

New Hampshire in this election is almost unique in remaining solidly with the Republican party, and the return of its old representation to Washington in lieu of new and untried successors, cannot fail to prove beneficial to the state's interests.

BIRDSEYE VIEWS

The finest and most up to date life saving station on the Atlantic coast, that just completed on Appledore Island, is a fitting monument to the memory of the late Philip Danrell Laighton of this city, to whose earnest and untiring efforts is wholly due its existence. Had Mr. Laighton lived, his name would have ultimately stood beside that of Her. Sumner I. Kimball, general superintendent of the service, for no other man ever labored with more diligence and altruistic honesty of purpose for the good of the brave coast guards. It is to be regretted that no custom exists by which Mr. Laighton's name can be officially perpetuated in connection with the station which his work brought into being.

A capitalist, in describing the secret of his success, tells of his perception in early life of the fact that the principle underlying all systems of finance was the principle of substitution, and that the common mass of people are born to be only misused. So he became a subaltern and prospered. To our obtuse perception, being a multiplicant would seem to embody more possibilities. An insinuation lurks in that word.

West Point first class cadets have had their annual Christmas leave annulled as a penalty for the "stiffness" recently bestowed on an unpopular instructor at the academy. This is only the annual grievance of the midshipman at Annapolis who get no leave except in the September furlough. There seems to be no reason why both institutions should not be treated alike in this respect.

A recent writer describes Robert W. Chambers as "The Heinz of the Kissing Business," on the ground that Mr. Chambers has invented, described and copyrighted more than fifty-seven varieties of kisses. The writer intimates that Mr. Chambers builds his novels around various kisses. However true this may be, this osculatory author appears to be little behind the pickle man in popularity, for few literary efforts of their kind have been more widely read than "A Kiss in the Dark" and "The Fighting Chance" and others such.

The eighth annual motorboat and engine show which is to be opened in Boston Jan. 28, bids fair to be the best of the year by the exhibition of aerial craft. It is safe to say, however, that no great diminution in the sales of the marine craft as pleasure vehicles will be noticed until a few more months roll around.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

For Example

In the early part of March, 1885, a native of Ireland arrived in New York with eight dollars in his pocket. He struck off into the country, asking at every farm for a steady job and paying for a meal and a night's lodging with a few hours' work. He finally found a place at fifteen dollars a month, board with the farmer's family, and a room in the garret.

Out of his pay, in the course of time, he bought a hundred acres of land at a hundred dollars an acre. It was practically new land. He built a house with his own hands, a barn with the timber on the land, and, with the help of his neighbors, dug the ditches and built the fences. He raised nine useful sons and daughters and led a happy life.

Today any man can get twice the wages and buy the farm, with all its improvements, at half the price: only one-fourth the period of saving and waiting is required of the man who makes the effort today.

What comparison is there between that Irish farmer's corn fields, the cattle on his hills, his peaceful Sunday afternoon, and the hurried life of the underfed city workman? No laws helped the immigrant except harsh ones which caused an economic situation that pushed him from his home and put him upon his own initiative and self-help.—Collier's.

Sheep Killing

New Hampshire, as well as Vermont, is troubled by the killing of sheep, as well as deer, by dogs, and one complainant says: "We must choose between the cultivation of dogs and the rearing of sheep, for the two cannot co-exist and thrive." That's the way John Burroughs and a good many others feel about cats and birds.—Boston Globe.

Naval Scholarship

It is good news that the "naval scholarships" in George Washington University, founded by the late Admiral Powell, will soon become available for American youth. These scholarships, providing for a year's study in special subjects at the University, are intended to fit young men to enter the Naval Academy, or the merchant service, or to prepare them for taking appointments as warrant officers in the navy.—Boston Herald.

A Good Thing

President Mellen of the Boston and Maine has certainly done one good thing in canceling the plans for a restaurant on Mount Washington, already under construction, and deciding that a substantial hotel shall be built there. Although Mount Washington is in New Hampshire instead of Maine, even those of us who can't afford to pay the necessary five or six dollars for a single day on the summit can realize to business and esthetic advantages resulting from the erection of this house. Mount Washington without a hotel is almost unthinkable.—Oxford Democrat.

ALL DRUGGISTS

A TIMELY TOPIC

REV. S. H. WOODROW,
 Of Washington, D. C.

The Small Pay of Ministers

WE pride ourselves on being an intellectual and educational people, yet Russia has well said that we live for pleasure and enjoyment. We are stopping at the present in the best hotels of the city, where the head cooks, or chefs, get more salary than the ministers of Boston, and Boston ministers no doubt are the highest paid. We have our great ministers, our Dr. Gordons, our Scudders, our Maddens and others. We think a lot of them, yet this Speaker, Ty Cobb, Larry Lajotte, and the "Mighty" Hans Wagner get more money than they do and only have to work five months in the year.

The minister's salary ought to be paid on time and in full. The labor side have a clause whereby everyone must be paid every two weeks. If the employer has not got the money he goes to the bank and borrows it. The same ought to be true in church. If you have not your minister's salary at the first of the month, borrow it from the bank. Don't borrow it from him and make him pay the interest on it.

The railroads and great corporations are all making preparations for the old men in their employ. They are being retired, and paid during the remaining years of their life. It is not charity they are extending, it is justice.

It is a strange thing these railroad monopolies and soulless corporations, as they are classed, making preparations for the future welfare of their old and faithful servants, and the church teaching the doctrine of Jesus Christ is disobeying its own teachings, and letting their aged and faithful servants end their existence in distress. If there is any organization which should see to it that these old and faithful school be cared for, it is the church of Jesus Christ.

LITERARY NOTES

A Christmas Present That Means Something

There is one especially good thing about a Christmas present of The Youth's Companion. It shows that he gives thought enough of you to give you something worth while. It is easy to choose something useful, a great deal more which is absolutely useless, but to choose a present costing only $1.75 that will provide a long year's entertainment, and the uplifting companionship of the wise and great, is another matter. There is one present, however, which does just that—The Youth's Companion.

If you want to know whether it is appropriate or welcome, just visit the home of some Companion subscribers on Companion day.

Do not choose any Christmas present until you have examined The Companion. We will send you free sample copies and the beautiful Prospectus for 1911 telling something of how The Companion has recently been enlarged and improved.

The one to whom you give the subscription will receive free all the numbers of 1910 issued after the money is received; also The Companion Art Calendar for 1911, lithographed in thirteen colors and gold. These will be sent to reach the subscriber Christmas morning, if desired.

You, too, as giver of the subscription, will receive a copy of the Calendar. The Youth's Companion, 144 Berkeley St., Boston, Mass. New subscribers received at this office.

"Adventure" for December

The second issue of Adventure, the Ridgway Company's new monthly, reveals the fact that the editors are thought of more kinds of adventure than were previously known to exist. The perils of Nihilism, winter, the deep sea, a forced marriage, the Arctic regions, heredity, mail street, aviation, war, ghosts, love, films, pirates and building railroads are a few of the varieties of which they treat.

"The White Rock," by James Barr is a murder story. The scene of "Home Through Blades," by C. Langton Clarke, is the wilderness of Northern Canada whence Alan R. Hawley and Augustus Post, the aeronauts, emerged October 26th after their record breaking sail in the balloon America II.

The second instalment of Governor Morris's pulse gathering is "Yellow Men and Gold," is as mysterious and exciting as "Treasure Island" or Poe's "Gold Bug." "The Mysterious Invitation" is a delightful bit of Arabian intrigue.

The two articles, "Where Hell is Frozen Over" and "In the Jungle after Schladang," treat of the Arctic to a new kind of big game, and are not fiction, but exciting fact. Heretofore the "picks" for "The Fox" and "Yellow Callahan." All in all, it is a magazine, and a bit of amazing stories are "The Disappearance of Henry Carroll," "A Poisoned Blockade" and "The Tragedy of Winky Winky Wink."

T. Donavan Bayley writes a prophetic romance of the conquest of the air, and Captain Fritz Dugmore, who fought in the Boer war, a true story of the early days in the Texas war. "The Packin of Menaporia" is a tale of scientific adventure in which a photograph in the fourth dimension is taken of an Egyptian princess dead many thousand years. "The Survival of the Fittest," by Thomas P. Byron, is a terrible story of a man hunt by a lion which it would not be well to read at night. Other short stories are by G. W. Orden, Jonathan Hadley and George Allan England, and the complete novelette by E. B. Mitchell varies so far from the usual tale of border intrigue that it furnishes a complete surprise.

PEOPLE'S OPINIONS

Editor Herald:—All the trees in Portsmouth are being spoiled and killed by this continued clipping for months, and other pruning. Spraying is used in other places and is much more effective.

A gentleman from Newton, Mass., visiting here in September, said that there was no need of elm trees here being killed by the beetle. If trees were sprayed every spring when the leaves begin to come out, the trees are saved. In Newton a power sprayer is used, that sends a large stream over the tallest trees. I have been told that other places use the same.

Three years ago in Greenland I looked down from an upper window upon a large brown spot in the middle of a large map apple tree. For a while I couldn't imagine the cause, but it soon came to me that was the very condition caused by brown tails I had recently seen described in N. Y. Tribune. It was in July, I think, I lost no time in having that tree and others near, and also my orchard thoroughly sprayed.

The ravages on that tree were stopped, and that winter there were but few nests to take from orchard. Spray for brown tails, at any and all times of year, before they make nests. CONSTANT READER.

EVENTS OF ELIOT

Eliot, Me., Nov. 11.

Everett Harvey and family have moved from Farmer road to Kiliory village.

A good number of Freemasons went to the Chapter meeting at South Berwick on Thursday evening.

Miss Sarah E. Tobey, who has been keeping house for her father, G. Frank Tobey, has gone out to work and is staying in Kiliory.

The rain was welcome. Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Small of Salmon Falls have been guests at Charles Jellison's.

Frank N. Prescott, foreman of the South Berwick, Me., car burn, on the Atlantic Shore Line, and Miss Myrtle N. Rogers of South Berwick, were married at Dover on Wednesday evening at the residence of Rev. Benjamin P. Eaton, formerly pastor of the Universalist church. After the ceremony the couple left for their home in South Berwick. The marriage did not become known to the employees of the electric road until Thursday. Mr. Prescott is popular with the men on this division of the electric railway and there are many congratulations.

RIVER AND HARBOR

The five master Governor Brooks was towed up river this morning to discharge her cargo of coal.

The white schooner Emma E. Potter, an arrival in the lower harbor Thursday, is one of the oldest Provincial schooners in American trade. She was built no longer ago than 1870, but for spruce Nova Scotia craft this is a long life. Ten years sometimes suffices to wear them out. The Potter built from Annapolis, N. S., and is 147 tons.

Seafaring men think that Angus Scabb's motor boat Pet probably described a great circle after she broke adrift at the Shoals Tuesday night and started off to sea on her own hook with engine going. Most power propelled boats carry a star board helm if left to themselves, and if the C.P.'s engine kept going she might have brought up on the Cape Ann shore. Unless her oil cups were full, however, the engine would have got hot before this could have occurred.

JUDGE PAGE'S ACCUSATION

Letter in Which He Makes Charges Of Vote Buying

The Herald Thursday summarized Judge Calvin Page's charges to Governor-elect Page of Republican vote buying. Below is given a copy of the letter in which these charges were preferred.

Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 10, 1910.
Hon. Robert M. Bass.

Peterborough, N. H.

Dear Sir:—At the Republican rally, addressed by you in this city on November fourth, you reiterated what you had already stated in print, that under no circumstances would you allow votes to be bought for you or frauds to be committed at the coming election, and you asserted that you would not only not accept an offer for which votes were purchased for you, but would furnish financial aid in prosecuting anybody guilty of buying them.

In introducing the subject of honest elections, you said to the audience that you had been informed that the Republicans never had bought votes in Portsmouth. A loud "guffaw" went up from the mouths of the audience at that statement, including even the children present, and you must then have known either that your statement was false or that you had been misinformed.

While you were in the city, I am informed by one of our leading Republicans, you were told that votes were to be bought for you on election day and that they wished to know whether you should repudiate such votes if you were elected, and also whether you should assist in the prosecution of your party members who did the buying. My information is that you were dumb.

It was the general understanding here that your relatives were to furnish the cash to buy votes, and you were to be kept in ignorance of it. With a "knowing wink" a man would smile and say simply, "Brother John."

One of your supporters told me that if you meant what you said you could not be elected. Personally, from what I had heard of you, I believed in your honesty on this subject, because you had been condemning all your old friends and associates because you thought they had been guilty of bribery at elections for many years.

Now, I offer to furnish evidence to you that Tuesday in this city the most open, shamefaced and flagrant bribery was practiced at the polls by your supporters and your party, and gross violations of law and offenses against the electorate were committed by your party, of which you are the beneficiary, and of which some of your supporters are ashamed and disgusted.

I offer to furnish further evidence that a large corruption fund was put into this city by the liquor interests and used for your ticket and for you.

I offer to prove that in Ward One two barrels of beer were hoisted up in the Ward Room building and dealt out by your workers and supporters.

notwithstanding the law; and also votes were purchased by your party, and votes "paid off" in the view of witnesses.

I offer to prove that in Ward Five the Republican representative-elect worked for you and was assisted by persons of bad reputations, some of them being now under indictment for crime and that this representative, who is the boss of the Ward Committee, sat in a back at the door of the ward room for many hours and out of the back window openly dealt out investigating liquor to voters who were brought up by these assistants, and that these voters were taken into the voting place and were taken to the back, and some of them taken inside, for the purpose, as everybody who has any sense knows, of being "paid off."

I was a candidate for representative in ward two, and the count is reported to defeat me by eleven votes out of about $80. I was in the ward room the greater part of the day and was approached by voters desiring to sell their votes and by their agents. I could easily have bought my election but I told every body that I preferred to be defeated, rather than have one single vote bought for me. These same persons afterwards voted under the direction of your party friends and were led up to the rail like cattle; and I believe that their votes when examined, will have a cross in the circle above your name.

For many hours the ballot box in Ward Two was open with the cover off, and every ballot was taken by the moderator and laid in the box as he pleased, and I heard many criticisms from leading Republicans, as well as Democrats of this proceeding. Under the circumstances, there could be no secret ballot and a bushel basket would have been a more convenient ballot box.

I further offer to prove, what I saw, that Republicans who were not voting and were not election officials, were behind the rail and near the booths, where our election laws expressly proved they shall not be under any circumstances. I saw members of the Republican City Committee behind the rail; and men actively working and bringing in voters for you; and also a member of our Board of Public Works was many times seen by me behind the rail. I protested against it and the moderator brazenly said he would allow the Democrats to come in also, if I objected to the Republicans.

These conditions are intolerable and an outrage upon decency and the principles of which you claim to be the chief exponent in your party. The execution of the criminal laws of this county is in the hands of your friends and supporters, who, whether they know the situation or not, were the beneficiaries under this election. I cannot expect them, under the circumstances, to aid in bringing the offenders to justice. Your election, so far as the result in this city is concerned, is tainted with crime, but from your assertions as to the stand you take against them, I am emboldened to call upon you to take the necessary steps to punish these offenders, or at least to advance the necessary financial aid to convict the offenders. It will be a hard fight but it can be won, if you will take it up.

Somebody in behalf of Mr. Sullivan way; and yourself put a vast corruption fund into this city Tuesday. You can ascertain who did it, if you do not already know. More money was offered than they could use.

Will you at once ascertain who raised this money, where it came from, who sent it here and who handled it? If you will meet me privately, I will give you information to aid you in getting at the facts regarding this city, as well as regarding some other places in this county. Friends of yours and friends of mine will necessarily be involved in such a prosecution, but it is a matter so vital to your personal honor and the welfare of our state, of which you are soon to be chief executive, that I trust no consideration of friendship will prevent you from doing your duty, fully and fearlessly, even though the result is to be that some of your so-called friends shall wear "prison stripes."

Yours sincerely,
CALVIN PAGE.

LEND A HAND ANYWHERE

If you cannot on the ocean
Sail among the swiftest fleet,
Rocking on the highest billow,
Laughing at the storms you meet,
You can stand among the sailors,
Anchored yet within the bay.
You can lend a hand to help them
As they launch their boats away.

If you are too weak to journey
Up the mountains steep and high
You can stand within the valley
While the multitude go by.
You can chant a happy measure
As they slowly pass along.
Though they may forget the singer,
They may not forget the song.

If you are too weak to journey
Prove yourself a soldier true,
If where smoke and fire are thickest
There's no work for you to do,
When the battlefield is silent
You can go with careful tread,
You can bear away the wounded,
You can cover up the dead.

If you cannot in the harvest
Gather up the richest sheaves,
Many a grain both ripe and golden
May the careless reapers leave.
Go and glean among the briers
Growing rank against the wall,
For it may be that their shadow
Hides the heaviest wheat of all.

Do not, then, stand idly waiting
For some greater work to do.
Fortune is a fickle goddess.
She will never come to you.
Go and toil in any vineyard.
Do not fear to do and dare.
If you want a field of labor
You can find it anywhere.

—Margaret E. Sangster.

ARE AUTOMOBILE PRICES COMING DOWN

Yes and No.
Because some side street dealer in shoddy clothing "takes the public into his confidence" and plasters his win dows with gaudy placards boldly announcing the closing out of $9.98 suits at $9.99, would you immediately conclude that high class tailoring was going to follow?

Because a furnisher found it expedient to "divide his profits with his customers" and condescend to let them have an unpopular, unsalable, out-of-date line of hats at 25 per cent. discount, would you deprive yourself of the latest Knox or Dunlap with the expectation that they were coming down?

Because the street peddler hawked a load of spoiled fruit at any price he can get, would you interpret it as an indication that sound fruit was going to be cheaper?

Recent widely advertised reductions in prices of certain automobiles mean nothing so far as they affect the business as a whole. There is perhaps no single industry in the world today that is on so substantial a basis as that of the manufacture of motor cars.

But there are two classes of makers in the field.
There are those who are in the business on a business basis, who believe in its future and who are building for permanency.

On the other hand, there are those of the sky rocket variety who are in the business for all the profit they can get out of it while they may, who can never sell their cars twice to the same buyer, but who must look for a new crop of victims every year.

Detroit Saturday Night clearly sizes up the situation when it says:—

"No manufacturer cuts the price of his product for reasons of health, amusement, philanthropy, virtue or charity. It is either a declaration of war on competitors or a strategic move for the closing out of old stock. It is dear to the heart of the consumer who is always waiting for bargain day."

During the past year or two, some purchasers in their scramble for cars would accept anything just so it had the appearance of an automobile, regardless of quality.

But the closing month of the 1910 season showed that a few makers of the latter mentioned variety had overestimated the crop of "easy money" and have found themselves stocked up with either finished cars of material to such an extent that something had to be done.

Now if you were an automobile manufacturer in that fix, and if you could not continue to palm off your wares at the inflated values which had formerly prevailed, wouldn't it be the most natural thing in the world for you to cut the price? And if cut were not enough, wouldn't you make another and keep on doing it, especially if it still left you a good margin of profit?

Of course it might not occur to you to pose as a philanthropist, and you might not be able to adroitly and tactfully cover up the real reason for the reduction, but you would do something to get out from under "go broke."

The recent advertised cuts in prices indicate nothing more nor less than the fact that the cars affected have fallen so far short of making good that their makers must resort to almost any means to dispose of them, with the evident expectation of discounting those models and starting over again with some new experiment for the public to "bite" on.
No one with any knowledge at all of real conditions takes seriously the claim of cheaper material or cheaper labor unless the car is to be made of material of a cheaper grade and by labor of a cheaper class.
The honestly made car, the car that is made of as good material and by as skilled labor, costs more to produce today than it did a year ago. The manufacturer who is building an honest car and selling it at an honest price has no room for a reduction. The reverse is more probable. Even now there is an actual shortage in cars of repute. Manufacturers who have produced cars which have "made good" have orders booked ahead for months, while some of such makers have deposits covering every car they can build for 1911.

There are discriminating buyers, and will be for years to come, sufficient to absorb the output of all the truly good cars that will be made. The Cadillac factory has increased its output by 1-3 for 1911 and every car is spoken for by its agents. They are working full time now, and are behind in their orders. You can judge when the spring of 1911 comes, etc.

TALKING OVER INCREASE OF ARMY OFFICERS

Dickinson to Take Action on Recommendation of General Wood for 612 More or Less.

The return of the secretary of war to Washington will afford the opportunity for action on several important subjects which have had the attention of the general staff of the war department and upon which Major General Leonard Wood, the chief of staff of the army, has made recommendations. The most important, as far as army officers are concerned, is the modification of the pending bill, which aims to increase the commissioned personnel by 612 officers. It is hoped to improve the chances of action by Congress by amending the bill so as to provide for duty with the militia. The bill, as originally drafted, contemplated merely officers for this purpose. The idea is that the measure will allow officers to be placed on detached duty creating an equivalent number of vacancies in the army to be filled partly from civil life. One of the questions which Secretary Dickinson will take up is the regulation of the appointments one proposition being to place a restriction upon the number which may be made from civil life. It is desired that two-thirds of all the appointments should go to graduates of the Military academy. It may develop that the influence of the militia, which it is hoped to gain by the new arrangement will be exerted in favor of appointments from the organized militia as distinguished from the appointment of civilians.

Another matter to be taken up is the appointment of a major general in the retirement of General W. P. Duvall in January, and the appointment of five brigadiers occurring at various times from Dec. 31 to March 31. It is rumored that Brigadier General Murray, chief of Coast Artillery, will become a major general, and that he first brigadier will be filled by Colonel E. M. Weaver, also of the Coast Artillery Corps, who has been an efficient chief of the militia division. In the later event Colonel Weaver will undoubtedly continue in his present duty, giving his branch of the War department the distinction of the supervision of a general officer. The army is especially interested in the new appointments as given some indication of the policy of Mr. Taft in his respect and as showing whether there will be a continuation of the policy adopted at the instance of General Bell of having the appointments to brigadier distributed among officers of infantry, cavalry and coast and field artillery, based on the relative strength of the commissioned personnel.

A third important question which Secretary Dickinson will take up and carry to the President will be the movement of troops during 1911. The regular schedule may be departed from the coming year in anticipation of a material increase in the military forces intended for the Hawaiian islands. It is contemplated to make that place a key to the military situation in the Pacific in anticipation of the completion of the Panama canal.

Mr. William Lord Philbrick died on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mr. John M. Bryant on Myrtle avenue, at the age of 82 years.
Mr. Philbrick was one of the best-known old farmers in this section of the state. For twenty odd years he was the head farmer at the Mark Wentworth farm, and for the same length of time was head farmer for the late Frank Jones, and upon his retiring from that position he assumed charge of the City farm.

Work is progressing on the filling of street job.

My Corns Don't Hurt A Bit.

Tired, Ailing, Swollen, Smelly, Sweaty Feet, Corns, Callouses and Bunions, TIZ Cures Right Off

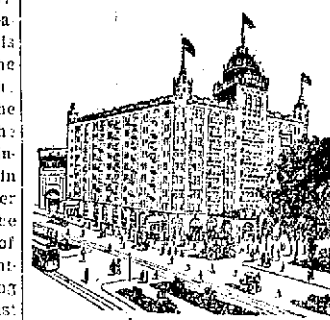

Say good-bye to your corns the very first time you use TIZ. You will never know you have a corn, bunion or callous, or twenty, tired, swollen, aching feet any more. It's just wonderful the way the pain vanishes. Rub the corn—hammer it with your fist if you wish—no more pain after TIZ than if there had never been a blemish on your feet. Doesn't that sound good to you? Doesn't it? Then read this.

"The corns on either of my toes were as large as the tablets you make to cure them. Today there is no sign of corns on either foot and no soreness. It's an up-to-date Godsend."—Sam. A. Hoover, Progress, N. C.

Just use TIZ. It's not like anything else for the purpose you ever heard of. It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principal of drawing out all the poisonous exudations which cause sore feet. Powders and other remedies merely clog up the pores. TIZ cleans them out and keeps them clean. It works right off. You will feel better the very first time it's used. Use it a week and you can forget you ever had sore feet. There is nothing on earth that can compare with it. TIZ is for sale at all druggists, 25 cents per box or direct, if you wish, from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill.

TO BLOW UP THE PURITAN

TEST TO BE MADE WITH SUBMARINE MINES TO TEST HIGH EXPLOSIVES.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 10.—In order to test the resisting power of armor plate when it comes in direct contact with high explosives, the monitor Puritan, which 10 years ago cost $1,500,000, will be the subject of experiments which may blow her to pieces in Norfolk harbor, next Tuesday.

The Puritan, now at the Norfolk navy yard, will be towed to Cranes island, and experts from the navy department will place mines along her water line. There will be connected by electric wires running to the island, and at the appointed time the charges will be exploded.

Naval officials from Washington will witness the test, and officers of the local navy yard and from the ships now here also will be spectators.

The spot selected for the experiments on the Puritan is almost the identical place where the Merrimack, of civil war fame, was destroyed by confederates to prevent her falling into the hands of the Yankees.

from the exact spot where Dr. Cook himself stood. These cornices are shaped according to the whims of the winds that blow, and the formation varies from year to year. It will also be noted that there is more snow in the photograph I took. This is due to the fact that I was there in July, while Dr. Cook's photograph was taken in September. A considerable amount of snow naturally would melt away in two summer months. But you can readily see that the photographs are of one and the same rock, and a very paltry rock it is at that. I duplicated a number of other photographs in Dr. Cook's book at totally different points from where the doctor says they were taken, and these, with a detailed account of my expedition, will be made public at a later date. But these photographs are of far less importance than that of the 'summer' itself.

"After getting all the material I wanted in this neighborhood, we pushed on twenty miles farther to the base of McKinley, and made numerous attempts to cross to the north-east ridge of the mountain. But our passage was effectually cut off by a 12,000-foot range of icepeaks at the head of Ruth Glacier, which were impassable on account of pinnacles and crevices. Dr. Cook makes no mention of them in his book, never having been far enough to see them. Then, on the southwest face of McKinley, and after reaching an elevation of 10,000 feet gave up any further attempts to scale the mountain; while I regret that we were unable to get to the top, still we had accomplished the object of my mission, and felt well satisfied with the result of the expedition."

When asked what he thought of the despatches from Alaska in the early summer saying that Tom Lloyd had reached the top of the mountain, Professor Parker said he desired to correct some statements which had been attributed to him concerning the matter. "I never said," he declared, "that Tom Lloyd did not reach McKinley summit. What I did say was that although our party got within seven miles of it none of us could see even with the strongest glasses, the flag or pole Lloyd says he planted there to stay. How ridiculous, therefore, the statements were that the flag had been seen from Fairbanks, 140 miles away." Professor Parker, in spite of his failures to conquer McKinley, believes that a way will yet be found to scale the mountain.

ANOTHER FAKE IS EXPOSED

New York, Nov. 10.—Professor Herschel C. Parker of Columbia University, who recently returned from his exploration of Mt. McKinley, today made public a series of photographs taken near the Alaskan mountain which he claims is indisputable evidence that Dr. Frederick A. Cook never reached the top of the highest peak in America. Professor Parker states that he found the mountain peak which Dr. Cook photographed and called Mt. McKinley, the "top of the continent," and in support of his statement showed a photograph of a mountain peak taken by his expedition last summer and pointed out that a comparison of the two photographs shows in detail identical outlines of rock formation, proving that they are pictures of the same mountain. "The mountain which I photographed," said Professor Parker, "was twenty miles away from Mt. McKinley and 15,000 feet below its summit. This is the same peak that Cook photographed and called the top of the continent."

Professor Parker corroborated the confession made a year ago by Edward Barrill, guide of Dr. Cook, that they never reached the top of Mt. McKinley. "We left our boat on the Tokositna at about the same spot where Dr. Cook and Barrill took to the ice," said Professor Parker, who was a member of Dr. Cook's expedition in 1906. "My idea was to follow as closely as possible the route taken by the doctor, and we had no difficulty in doing this, with Barrill's map at hand. In a few days our party reached the spot noted on the map as the point where Barrill's picture was taken. This was in the Amphitheatre Glacier in the foothills of Mt. McKinley twenty miles from its base."

"Having reached the place, the problem now confronting us was, to pick out the rock which Barrill stood when he was photographed with the flag in his hand. This, perhaps, was easier to do than one might imagine. In spite of the fact that there was innumerable rocky peaks on all sides of us. There will be noticed in the lower right hand corner of Dr. Cook's photograph a peak in the distance, the snow formation on the top of which should make it easily distinguishable. It was, therefore, a comparatively simple matter to identify the peak as the second of the seven peaks of Ruth Glacier, only a few miles away from where we stood. Dr. Cook has said there are twelve peaks, but he evidently did not carry his investigations far enough to discover there are only seven. Then we soon found the rock we wanted in the snow saddle Barrill mentioned, and at last we were at the 'top of the continent.'"

"You will remember that Barrill swore that the picture in Dr. Cook's book, captioned 'First Five of the Twelve New Peaks of Ruth Glacier,' was taken on the same day that Dr. Cook took the famous photograph of the guide. That this statement was true is readily noted. In another of the pictures, entitled 'An Amphitheatre,' the rock itself on which Barrill stood may be seen. On account of the formation of the snow cornice it was impossible to photograph the rock

A RUNAWAY BOY

CLARENCE SMALL OF PORTLAND TRIED TO ENLIST IN NAVY—CAPTURED IN THE CITY AND RETURNED TO PARENTS.

Clarence Small, the young son of Sergt. Small of the Portland police, who has a mania for running away, was captured in this city on Thursday and taken back home in the evening.

Clarence ran away from home some days ago and turned up at his navy yard with a request that he be allowed to enlist in the navy. He young, and the recruiting officer insisted that he get an affidavit from his father as to his age. Two enlistment officers sent a notice to Sergt. Small, informing him of his application, and he immediately took a train for this city.

He arrived on Thursday, but before he arrived, Deputy Sheriff Wilbur Shaw had previously taken charge of Clarence, whom he met on the street and recognized.

Sergt. Small took the boy back to Portland with him Thursday evening and this time he is going to try and devise some means to make Clarence realize that home is the best place for him.

Young Small has given his parents a great deal of trouble, for this is the third of four times that he has run away, at one time getting as far as Montreal.

TWO SHOT IN COLD BLOOD

Walter G. Fall Kills Sergt. Schlehuber and Frank Rees

Boston, Nov. 10.—Walter G. Fall, who lives at 998 Tremont street, Roxbury, fatally shot Sergt. Frederick Schlehuber of police division 11, and instantly killed Frank A. Rees of 31 Tremont street, Dorchester, at 10.10 this morning, in the office of Dist. Atty. Pelletier, by shooting them with a big revolver. He then tried to shoot himself, but was overpowered before he could do so.

Fall, who is a clerk or auditor at the state house in room 101, which is the office of the commissioner of weights and measures, was one of several persons sitting in the district attorney's outer office. He was about to be interrogated relative to alleged carnal abuse of a female child, the stepdaughter of Rees, committed on March 1 last.

The case had not been taken up. Without the slightest warning Fall drew a revolver and pointed it at the sergeant, pulling the trigger twice. Before the echo of the shots died away, a third one rang out, and with it the two victims fell to the floor. Both men were hit in the head. The sergeant was the first to topple over and nearly on top of him fell Rees.

There is always a crowd in and about the office of the district attorney, and in a moment Fall was seized and thrown to the floor. While plucked down he tried to turn the revolver upon himself, but was disarmed.

In a few seconds attendance from the attorney's inner office rushed out, and seeing the men on the floor, covered with blood, sent for physicians.

Medical Examiner Magrath was among the first to arrive. The officials at police headquarters were quickly on the scene, because they had been attracted by the shooting. Among them was Chief Watts.

He soon had things moving, and police ambulances were rushed to the courthouse. In the corridors of the court there was great excitement. Sessions of the superior court that sessions of the superior court that were being held, and there was a big rush in the corridor outside the district attorney's office.

The police officials had to fight their way through the crowds. Court officers in uniform also rushed in and tried to clear the curious out of the corridors, but there was so much tense excitement that their efforts were almost wasted.

In the courtroom court attaches stood at their posts with blanched faces, wondering what had happened, and judges seemed to hesitate between whether suspending court or not.

The whole affair happened in a few seconds, and but for the fact that some of those waiting in the district attorney's office were policemen and used to acting in emergencies Fall would have been able to end his life.

The shooting was the outcome of a charge made against Fall of abuse of Esther H. Fogg, 14, a stepdaughter of Mr. Rees. It was alleged that Fall mistreated the child some months ago. The case has been pending since last April.

This morning it was stated that Fall was willing to marry the child and that her stepfather was also willing that this should be done, to avoid further publicity. The mother, however, objected.

The directory gives Mr. Rees' business address as auditor, 41 West 1st street, South Boston.

This morning Messrs. Rees and Fall were asked to come to the district attorney's office for a conference, as there is a grand jury sitting now. The district attorney was to determine what action he would take in the matter.

DICKINSON TO ASK FOR AERO PLANES

He Will Devote a Paragraph of His Annual Report to Flying Machines.

Congress will be asked by Secretary of War Dickinson to buy five or six aeroplanes for the army. The secretary said that he would devote a paragraph of his annual report to the subject of flying machines. General Allen, chief signal officer of the army, has recommended twenty aeroplanes for the army's use. Mr. Dickinson is not convinced that the government needs that many next year and will suggest a smaller number.

He is convinced, however, that the United States must equip itself with air craft if it is to keep pace with the other powers.

IN THE REALM OF FASHION

The Shoulder Scarf.

Of all the accessories of the up to date wardrobe no other is so conspicuous as the scarf, for this useful adjunct is worn for both day and evening. The black satin scarf that came out as early as last spring is still a craze here and abroad.

The scarf to hang properly must be cut biaswise and, being full two yards long and twelve inches wide, needs double width satin unless it is to be placed more than once. And it wants lining of handsome quality satin of the same width. At a low estimate about a yard and three-quarters of each kind in the double-width will be required.

Double faced satin duchesse might be used, but this is still more expensive, the handsomest costing at least $4 a yard in the width wanted. The satin duchesse comes in lovely combinations, black with white, myrtle green and reseda, marine and cadet blue, two tones of brown, two tones of rose, two tones of gray, velveteen and light violet and a dozen other combinations of two tone or chameleon character. If a colored lining is used with the scarf it should be of the tone most conspicuous in the hat or gown.

The white lining has been far and away the best liked ever since the scarf first appeared, and it still is the leader.

The ends of the scarf are more often than not shirred and finished with long tassels, but because the tassels have been so much used other finishes are springing up. One is shown in the drawing where a buckle covered with the shirred satin makes a desirable finish.

These are the same sizes, but not the same cut or fashion, as the clothes for small women. The object is to meet the demands made by the figures and style of young girls from fourteen to twenty.

For street wear there are smart tailor made dresses in serge, fancy mixtures and pique. Most of these have the peasant blouse and one of the many varieties of the new straight, narrow skirt.

Sailor collars are frequently seen, and small yokes are also favorite trimmings. Jabots or frills of chiffon, lace or silk are likewise popular.

For afternoon messaline, satin, tulle, tulle, broadcloth, cashmere and velvet are all in favor. The usual trimmings are hand embroidery, lace, braid and oriental appliques. Some of these afternoon frocks have a collarless neck and three-quarter sleeves.

Dancing frocks for the young girl are of chiffon, plain or bordered, net, marquisette or some other soft, sheer fabric. All of these are made over linings of satin, messaline or silk. Nearly all silk frocks are veiled to soften the effect.

These dancing frocks, meant primarily for the older girls, are nearly all made decollete and with very short sleeves. A few are gathered at the ankles, with sashes to match the girdles and the color of the dress.

Artificial flowers are often seen as trimmings. Beads are also in the mode in both white and colors. Most of these frocks are white; many are in pale shades of pink, blue, green, lavender and yellow.

New Castle Boy Gets Appointment
Frederick W. Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fabius Robinson of New Castle, has been appointed third officer of the U. S. S. Lebanon. Though the hole was properly covered with boards, the spot was not lighted.

Mr. Stevenson Gets a Surprise
Augustus Stevenson, master shipwright at the yard, was very much surprised at his home in North Kittery on Thursday evening. It was the 75th anniversary of his birth and a number of his friends called to help him celebrate the event. Mr. Stevenson had hardly recovered from one surprise of seeing the merry company invading his home when there was another. This was the presentation of a handsome gold headed cane and a beautiful landscape picture on behalf of the W. C. T. U. The gifts were handed to him by Mrs. Elizabeth Mouson in a very neat and appropriate address to which he ably and feelingly replied. Music and refreshments added to the evening's program and the celebration of Mr. Stevenson's 75th will long be remembered by those who had the pleasure of being present on the occasion.

TRAMP TRIED TO STEAL COAT

But Threat to Call Police Frightened Him Away

A tramp came to the door of Nathan F. Amee's house at 53 Hill street this forenoon and asked for a "hand-out."

Failing to get it from Mrs. Amee he seized an overcoat belonging to her husband and retreating to a safe distance, he repeated his request more forcibly.

This argument failing to have the desired effect the tramp started to make off with the garment on his arm, but a threat to call the police caused him to drop it and vamoose.

Will Not Now Build Improvements to Its Home

Because of the uncertainty of financing a $25,000 proposition, the Portsmouth Athletic club will postpone its project to build a bowling alley, gymnasium and dance hall on its land at the rear of the home.

Two seasons ago the club lost about $2000 on a circus and it is not now ready to take up the big venture. Plan are practically completed. At the meeting Wednesday night a vote of thanks was given to John A. Pellic and Allan H. Robinson, who explained the two club pool teams. One hundred and twenty-four members have signed the agreement to play in the second big tournament now under way.

RIFLE RANGE NEEDED HERE

This Post Badly in Want of Such Establishment

The Herald, again speaking on the matter of the establishment of a rifle range in this section, still insists that it should be located within the borders of this city.

Portsmouth is an army and navy post and instead of soldiers from the navy yard, and coast artillery being sent to other states, it should be just the other way, and the soldiers of the government service and state militia should be coming to Portsmouth every year.

The Herald representative has talked on this subject to the leading officials of the army, navy and militia in this section, and they are decidedly in favor of this move, especially regular army officers.

The government would save money if the men could shoot at home, and not be obliged to travel to Wakefield, Mass., and Massachusetts, N. H.

CAPT. McBRIDE'S OPINION

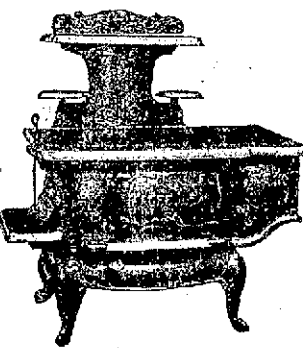

Referring to the protest made on election day because soldiers from Fort Constitution voted at New Castle, Capt. Robert B. McBride, commanding the artillery district of Portsmouth, interprets the law to mean that any soldier who lives in a town, outside the fortifications, for six months prior to an election and who announces his intention of living permanently in the town may be permitted by the selectmen to vote.

He thinks the matter is at the discretion of the selectmen. If they permit a soldier's name to be placed upon the checklist he cannot be prevented from voting, the Democrats claim.

The Packard Method

In building each Packard Piano a high class workman takes all the time he has to have to do this work right. After the work is done, time must be consumed in allowing the parts to settle, and then it is gone over again. This is repeated until each detail has been brought into a harmonious whole.

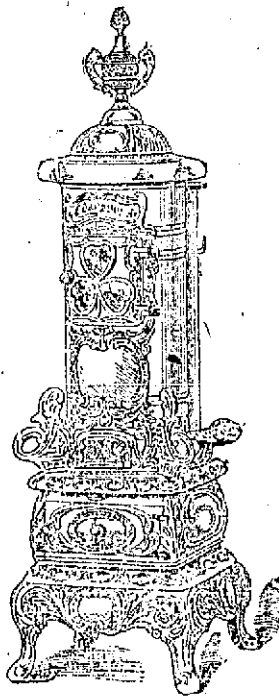

Ample time is allowed for every branch of the work, nothing is rushed or crowded, and no chances taken. It takes an average of six to eight months to build a Packard Piano.

Appreciate the Packard Method. Then, if never before, you will realize that the Packard is all we claim for it.

A Bank Account Simplifies Things

When system and order comes into a man's routine of life they "ease the pressure" in a hundred ways—and make the management of affairs simple and pleasant, instead of burdensome and vexatious. But "system" and "order" are strangers to the man who does not have a bank account.
